30 Years BOLD

Three decades ago, a handful of child advocates came together to lay the groundwork for a non-partisan advocacy and research organization dedicated to improving the well-being of Colorado children. What started as an idea has grown into a movement to ensure every chance for every child in the state. Throughout 2015, we were joined by our founders, former leaders, early supporters—and many more—in celebrating being 30 years BOLD.

In true Children's Campaign style, we kicked off our celebrations with a party for staff and board alumni in our offices. Our guests of honor included Children's Campaign Presidents Marsha Gould and Barbara O'Brien, and our original founders Sam and Dr. Nancy Gary, Dr. Steve Berman and Elaine Gantz Berman, and Anna Jo Haynes.

In honor of our anniversary, we brought together visionaries and catalysts who've dedicated their lives to big ideas at our Annual Luncheon. Nearly all our founders were celebrated on stage by Gov. John Hickenlooper and Chris Watney, who served as President and CEO from 2009 to 2016. Our Keynote Speaker John Wood, a former Microsoft executive, delved into how a small idea of filling an empty school library in the Himalayas can change the world.

Three decades after our founders committed to create this organization, the principles they established remain strong today: addressing child well-being through multiple domains; working in a bi-partisan way; being data-driven and relying on research for policy positions; and being independent—beholden solely to children's interests. These principals are what have given us the strength and integrity to carry out our important mission. Certainly, they have evolved, but at its core, the Children's Campaign is, and has been, a result of their vi-

EARLY CHILDHOOD

We promoted policies to streamline and align early childhood services by moving numerous programs serving young children from multiple state agencies into the Office of Early Childhood. The goal: an early childhood system that is more efficient and more responsive to families. We also advocated for the addition of 3,200 slots in the Colorado Preschool Program to expand access to quality early education to more Colorado kids.

K-12

We enthusiastically supported a bipartisan solution to student assessment challenges. Legislation passed in 2015 made reasonable reductions in state testing requirements while preserving the important information about school and student performance that parents and educators need. We also helped defeat several threats to recent innovations in high academic standards and educator accountability.

HEALTH

We led an effort to secure public funding for a highly successful Colorado Family Planning Initiative that provided long-acting reversible contraceptives to low-income women and teens. While the effort to continue progress in reducing unintended pregnancies was defeated in 2015, the work to build a strong coalition and educate policymakers paid off in 2016 when the program was funded. We worked with health partners to invest $1.2 million in the Colorado Immunization Information System, and update the Colorado Benefits Management System to allow families with fluctuating income to use an annualized income for Medicaid eligibility.
